

Protecting your money

14 Oct 2009 — Bucks County Courier Times

I am proudly running to be auditor in Middletown Township. In these difficult economic times when every penny counts we need to make sure that every level of government is spending our money wisely.

I retired as finance manager with Faulkner Auto Group, spent 10 years in public service for Sen. Tommy Tomlinson and now will use all that experience to stand up for taxpayers.

My background will be valuable to my fellow citizens because I have the necessary experience to oversee tax dollars and make sure they are spent efficiently and wisely.

My opponent's recent letter to the editor mocking the position - and the American electoral process in general - is an affront to every family in Middletown who should be demanding their government do more with less.

Far from just signing documents, a good auditor is reviewing the books, showing up at supervisor and financial planning meetings, and demanding accountability for our tax dollars. That is what I plan to do if the voters of Middletown elect me as their auditor.

Sadly, standing up for taxpayers doesn't seem to be my opponent's plan at all!
